

Executive Board Message

As we approach October, the ISM-Philadelphia programs are starting to get into gear. We had a mini mega networking event on October 4th revolving around mentorship with young professionals. We partnered with other organizations to provide an opportunity for supply chain professionals to get together and expand their network. The October dinner meeting will focus on the topic of Supply Chain Risk Management. We will get some insight on how to mitigate risk in this global economy.

Which brings us to the value of the ISM-Philadelphia membership. As you may know, we are in the midst of a membership campaign which will allow us to sustain ourselves over the long term. As a member, ISM-Philadelphia can help you grow in your chosen profession. The dinner meetings are one avenue since we invite speakers to discuss topics of interest. We also videotape some of these events which enables our members to view at their leisure. Plus, we hold "Network after Work" events on a monthly basis which provides opportunities for knowledge transfer in a more casual setting. We even have blogs available on our website. These are just some of the ways that we can help you improve your skill sets.

So stay tuned for even more exciting events in the coming months besides our regular dinner meetings. We strive to offer our members the best value when it comes to educational and networking opportunities. We want to help you progress in your careers.

I hope to see you at the next dinner meeting. Thank you.
